

Privacy Policy

Omnium (NSW) Pty Ltd is committed to protecting the confidentiality of the information you enter through Omnium's software for life insurance comparisons and research, collectively termed as the 'Service'. This policy explains the steps we have taken to ensure we comply with the Privacy Act 1988.

1. Why do we collect personal information?

We collect personal information about you, your clients or potential clients of yours in order to provide the Service to you.

2. What personal information do we collect?

We receive and store any information you enter through the Service about yourself, your clients or potential clients. The types of personal information we collect include Full names, contact information, age, gender, smoking status, state of residence, occupation, life insurance needs, financial situation information and any other personal information necessary for us to provide the Service.

3. What personal information is shared?

We may release personal information when it is necessary to comply with the law. This includes exchanging information with other companies and organisations for fraud protection.

We will not sell the personal information about you, your clients or potential clients to third parties for profit.

Except if by law or what is stated, we will notify you if we share the personal information and you will have the choice not to share if you desire.

4. Is the personal information secure?

Omnium attempts to protect personal information to keep it private. However, Omnium cannot guarantee the security of this information. Unauthorised entry or use, hardware or software failure, and other factors, may compromise the security of personal information at any time.

5. Changes to privacy

Omnium may amend this Privacy Policy at its discretion.
